PREFACE.

This little book is a translation from the English into the Ojibwa language, with the exception of the accompanying verses, and a few of the stories.

The necessity of some such a work has long been felt by some of those who have had the responsibility of teaching those untutored youth of the wilderness.

Unforeseen providences and hinderances have prevented a larger compilation being made at the present time. If the time spent by the translator at the printer's desk, and the imposing-stone, had been spent in translating and compiling, it would have swelled the book to more than twice its present size.

Some typographical incongruities occur in consequence of a want of suitable type. Whatever errors exist must be attributed to the compiler, who claims not infallibility, either as translator or printer, but, under existing circumstances, has attempted to do what appeared to be duty.

"Despise not the day of small things," is a motto well befitting the missionary of the cross. This little manual, having been compiled upon this principle, with not a little labor, is dedicated to the children ef the wilderness, who, it is hoped will receive some benefit from the perusal of its contents.
